Overtime Policy for the laborer, welder, operator and driver positions:

The Federal law states that not every job position is required to receive overtime. An excerpt from the Motor Carrier Exemption under the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA), as it relates to our laborer, welder, operator and driver positions, is included below as it pertains to our company and to each of you.

Excerpt from: Fact Sheet #19: The Motor Carrier Exemption under the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA)

Section 13(b)(1) of the FLSA provides an overtime exemption for employees who are within the authority of the Secretary of Transportation to establish qualifications and maximum hours of service pursuant to Section 204 of the Motor Carrier Act of 1935, except those employees covered by the small vehicle exception described below.

Thus, the 13(b)(1) overtime exemption applies to employees who are:

1. Employed by a motor carrier or motor private carrier, as defined in 49 U.S.C. Section 13102 (see Employer below);
2. Drivers, driver's helpers, loaders, or mechanics whose duties affect the safety of operation of motor vehicles in transportation on public highways in interstate or foreign commerce (see Employee Duties below); and
3. Not covered by the small vehicle exception (see Small Vehicle Exception below).

1. Employer

- Motor Carriers are persons providing motor vehicle transportation for compensation;
- Motor Private Carriers are persons other than motor carriers transporting property by motor vehicle if the person is the owner, lessee, or bailee of the property being transported, and the property is being transported for sale, lease, rent, or bailment, or to further a commercial enterprise.

2. Employee Duties

- The employee's duties must include the performance, either regularly or from time to time, of safety-affecting activities on a motor vehicle used in transportation on public highways in interstate or foreign commerce. Employees must perform such duties as a driver, driver's helper, loader, or mechanic. Employees performing such duties meet the duties requirement of the exemption regardless of the proportion of "safety affecting activities" performed, except where the continuing duties have no substantial direct effect on "safety of operation," or where such safety affecting activities are so trivial, casual, and insignificant as to be de minimis (so long as there is no change in the duties).
- Transportation involved in the employee's duties must be in interstate commerce (across State or international lines) or connect with an intrastate terminal (rail, air, water, or land) to continue an interstate journey of goods that have not come to rest at a final destination.
- Safety affecting employees who have not made an actual interstate trip may still meet the duties requirement of the exemption if:
 - The employer is shown to have an involvement in interstate commerce; and
 - The employee could, in the regular course of employment, reasonably have been expected to make an interstate journey or could have worked on the motor vehicle in such a way as to be safety-affecting. The Secretary of Transportation will assert jurisdiction over employees for a four-month period beginning with the date they could have been called upon to, or actually did, engage in the carrier's interstate activities. Thus, such employees would satisfy the duties requirement of the Section 13(b)(1) exemption for the same four-month period, notwithstanding references to the contrary in 29 C.F.R. § 782.2.

Definitions of a driver, driver's helper, loader, and mechanic as explained in Department of Labor Regulations: Part 782 are as follows:

Initials LSL

Driver: is an individual who drives a motor vehicle in transportation which is, within the meaning of the Motor Carrier Act, in interstate or foreign commerce. This definition does not require that the individual be engaged in such work at all times.

Driver's Helpers: is an employee other than a driver, who is required to ride on a motor vehicle when it is being operated in interstate or foreign commerce within the meaning of the Motor Carrier Act.

Loaders: is an employee of a carrier subject to section 204 of the Motor Carrier Act (other than a driver or driver's helper, whose duties include among other things, the proper loading of his employer's motor vehicle so that they may be safely operated on the interstate.

Mechanic: is an employee whose duty it is to keep motor vehicles operating in interstate or foreign commerce by his employer in a good and safe working condition.

As defined above, the Fair Labor Standards Act does not exempt an employee of a carrier from the act's overtime provisions, unless it appears, that his activities as driver, driver's helper, loader, or mechanic directly affect the safety of operation of motor vehicles in transportation in interstate or foreign commerce within the means of the Motor Carrier Act.
